Subject: Our Indonesian exchange student...at the rally in ANC

Dear Gov. Palin--

Just a brief note to let you know how proud we are of you and your quest to bring reform to Washington, DC.

This year, we're hosting a young woman from Indonesia as an exchange student. I asked her last night if she would like to go see you at the rally this AM. She said "Sure"!

So, we got up early and got a good spot for your rally this morning.

Again, we're very proud of you and we're confident that you're taking the "Alaska Spirit" with you on the campaign trail.

If you have an opportunity, I hope you can send a note of encouragement to Sulis. Her full name is Sulistianingsih Fitri .

Her email address is: shuliez_white17@yahoo.com

She is a senior at Service H.S. in Anchorage and she's studying the American political system on a scholarship from the U.S. State Department. I took her to the voting station with me for the primary on Aug. 26.

Best, s

Governor,
Got your message just now; didn't quite understand. Mike said yesterday to refer most things to the campaign. That pretty much has been the practice lately. No calls from the NY Times today; got an e-mail about the same time as your message. Inquiry yesterday was regarding Ivy. It seemed like a trap; he bypassed the press office at first. I wasn't sure what I could say, anyway. If I am going to respond to everything, I need more guidance.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE No. 08-157

Governor Palin Names Public Safety Commissioner

September 12, 2008, Anchorage, Alaska – Governor Sarah Palin today named Joseph A. Masters, security director of Doyon Universal Services and affiliate professor at University of Alaska Southeast, as commissioner of the Department of Public Safety.

"Joe Masters brings more than two decades of Alaska law enforcement experience to the Department of Public Safety," Governor Palin said. "Both the department and all Alaskans will be well-served by his professionalism and knowledge of all facets of the organization."

Masters, 44, of Anchorage, has 24 years of public safety experience. He has more than 20 years of service with the Department of Public Safety in various roles including supervising trooper recruitment and training. Masters served as deputy director of the Alaska State Troopers from June 2003 through May 2005. Prior to his service with the Troopers, Masters was a commander in Fish & Wildlife Protection.

"It is an honor to be entrusted with this responsibility by Governor Palin and I look forward to working with the Department of Public Safety, and in cooperation with other departments, in a continual quest for improved delivery of services," Masters said. "The members of the department are hardworking and dedicated to the protection of the citizens of Alaska and I am equally honored to provide direction and leadership to these everyday heroes."

Masters is a 1986 graduate of the Alaska State Trooper Academy. He serves on the board of directors for the Alaska Native Justice Center, the Fraternal Order of Alaska State Troopers and other organizations, and serves on working groups of the Alaska Rural Justice Commission. He lives in Anchorage with his wife Michelle and their three children.
